Since June 2006 the Blackfeet Achievement Center in Browning MT has held over 100 classes through the Manpower program, and has served hundreds of students. This Achievement Center is part of a grant-based initiative designed to bring computer technology access and education to low-income and remote Native American reservations across the nation. In partnership with the Native American Chamber of Commerce and with funding from IBM, SeniorNet is leading the technology training components of 'Hope and Harmony for Humanity.'
